

Citizens for the PRESERVATION of ST.AUGUSTINE

Working together to Preserve the Past
& Protect the Future.

CPSA Reorganizing to Bring New Awareness of Preservation Issues

A citizen's preservation advocacy group is one of the core recommendations of Dominique Hawkins, the consultant working on the new Historic Master Plan for St. Augustine. On January 31 at the Main Library, a group of over 25 interested people gathered to discuss preservation and the formation of such a group. Jenny Wolfe, the City's Historic Preservation Officer, presented ideas from the preliminary findings. A steering committee was formed and met with members of Citizens for the Preservation of St Augustine, Inc. It was readily decided to merge the two groups.

Our goal is to offer a variety of ways that people can get involved to preserve the diversity of St. Augustine's rich and varied history by:

- Creating "Annual Top 10 Lists" to bring attention to both threatened and restored properties
- Sponsoring public lectures and narrated tours on preservation
- Strengthening awareness of preservation in partnership with neighborhoods and business owners
- Commenting on the Historic Preservation Master Plan
- Advocating for code enforcement and legislation to protect St. Augustine's heritage
- Assisting the city in maintaining the Florida Master Site Files

To get on our mailing list email us at:
cpsa.staug@gmail.com

Join Us

March 16

at 7 pm

at the

Willie Galimore Center

399 Riberia St.

Featuring

"Lost St Augustine"

A look at buildings that have been demolished and what replaced them.

Narrated by Beth Bowen

Also a kick off of

"Name the 10 most threatened places in St Augustine."